School officials say CO2 levels in portables under control

By WENDY HANSCOM

A recent state report has listed all of SAD #44's portable classrooms as among hundreds in the state having higher-than-recommended levels of carbon dioxide.

Poor CO2 levels are an indication of poor ventilation. CO2 is a by-product of combustion and breathing. People exposed to high levels of the gas can become uncomfortable, tired, dizzy, and CO2 can also cause other reactions in some people.

School district officials, however, report the incidence of such symptoms is no higher in the portables than in the rest of the school population. They also say that air exchangers installed over the summer should eliminate any possibility of harmful levels of CO2. The state report was based on tests conducted in April of this year. Superintendent Dewaine Craig said that prior to these tests the district had done no similar testing of its own. He said he had neither heard complaints from parents about the air in portables, nor had he seen anything in professional literature to indicate there might be a problem.

However, last year's Ethel Bisbee principal, Wendy Ford, said she had been contacted by some parents last year regarding the quality of air in the school's portable classroom. The portable in question housed a morning

IF TODAY'S THE DAY, SUNDAY RIVER IS READY—Sunday River Ski Resort plans to open today, Wednesday, if weather permits. The resort spent the early part of the week taking advantage of the cold snap and putting down snow on the two trails it plans to open first. With the weather forecast calling for continued cold weather—maybe even a bit of real snow—Sunday River hopes to have five trails and two lifts ready for the upcoming three-day weekend. Last season the resort attracted more than 440,000 skier visits, a 12 percent increase over the previous year. (Photo by Sharon McNeill)

Local voting brisk

State officials had predicted that only one Maine voter in four would turn out for yesterday's election, but as of mid-afternoon local ballot clerks were reporting a heavier than expected flow of voters.

Bethel ballot clerk Celia Gorman, who has been filling the post for 57 of her own 87 years, said by mid-afternoon that she was revising her own prediction upwards, from 500 to 700—out of a total of 1,686 registered voters in town.

Yesterday's vote was tallied too late for inclusion in this week's edition of The Citizen, but the Wednesday edition of our daily affiliate, the Lewiston Sun-Journal, will have the latest state and national results.

Rebels capture third straight western Maine Class C championship

Will take on Foxcroft Saturday for state field hockey title

By WENDY HANSCOM

For the third straight year, the Telstar Rebels are the Western Maine Class C field hockey champions.

Top-seeded and undefeated Telstar High School scored five minutes and 25 seconds into sudden-death overtime Saturday for a 2-1 win over third-seeded Freeport High School.

Front linemen Amy Hannon picked up a pass from half-back Suzann Richardson and shot it past the Falcon's goalie for the game-winning goal.

Telstar (15-0) now advances to the state championship game against the Eastern Maine champs, Foxcroft Academy, at 2 p.m. Saturday at Bow-doin College.

This will also be the third consecutive trip for the hockey team to the state championships. The last two trips ended in disappointment, as the girls' state championship hopes slipped away in heartbreaking 1-0 losses.

If the Rebels are successful this time, Telstar can boast back-to-back state championship girls teams. Seven of the field hockey team starters played on the state Class C championship softball team this spring.

First-half play-off action Saturday was fast-paced. The Rebels and the Falcon's were fairly evenly matched.

West Bethel gets sweet water back

Residents of West Bethel Village found their lives a little sweeter Monday, when the taste—and odor—of chlorine began fading from their drinking water.

West Bethel, unlike the rest of the area served by the Bethel Water District, gets its water supply from drilled wells. BWD Trustee Bob Saunders said. And when a new well was brought on line four months ago, state regulations required that it be chlorinated for a period of time.

But the chlorine brought with it a distinctive taste and odor—and led to many complaints from residents who have long been accustomed to drinking Mother Nature's finest in its undisturbed form.

Saunders said that Saturday's mail brought with it permission from the state to discontinue the treatment, and by Sunday the

G'wood tire site fails to meet first DEP clean-up deadline

Gordon agreed to reduce tire pile, but inspection finds thousands more tires

By MICHAEL DANIELS

In June Peter Gordon, operator of an as-then unlicensed used tire storage site off the Rabbit Road in Greenwood, signed a consent agreement with the Maine Department of Environmental Protection and state Attorney General's Office, in which he agreed to reduce the size of the largest tire pile at the site to a 10,000 square foot "footprint" (the area of the pile at its base). The agreed upon deadline for reducing the pile, and for taking a number of other clean up actions, was Nov. 1, 1991.

The consent agreement was a prerequisite for the DEP's granting of a state license for the site, which had been operating without a license for at least five years.

In August DEP granted the license, but only over the strenuous protest of Greenwood officials. At an Augusta meeting with DEP Commissioner Dean Marriot, Greenwood selectmen and the town's planning board chairman argued that there was little in Gordon's track record to suggest he was able or willing to operate the site in compliance with the state's environmental regulations.

Marriot, however, argued that licensing the site would make it easier for the DEP to control Gordon's various tire operations. And he assured the Greenwood officials: "We will see to it that they are complied with—both the license and the consent agreement."

Last Friday, Nov. 1, the first deadline stipulated in the consent agreement passed, but an on-site inspection by the DEP found that rather than being reduced to 10,000 square feet, the size of the largest pile at the site had instead grown to an estimated 25,000 square feet or more. In addition, tires were piled to nearly twice the legal height of 20 feet.

"There are many, many more tires" going into the site, said DEP enforcement specialist Terry McGovern, who conducted the site inspection.

Gordon's operating license allows for three 10,000 cells, separated by fire

From Washington—

From Sen. William Cohen
Our lumber industry can compete, but not against subsidies

Glorious and bold, Maine's brilliant autumn foliage proclaims the onset of fall. Each season, stretches of rich red and gold maples dotted with burgundy ash attract vacationers and naturalists.

But for generations of Mainers, the state's 18 million acres of woodlands have long represented much more than a lure for tourists. More than eight million of those acres have become a valuable commodity.

Over the years, Maine's lumber industry has brought economic vitality to many communities. As early as the mid-19th century, my hometown of Bangor had already earned a reputation as the world's lumber capital. The 31-foot-tall Paul Bunyan statue in Bass Park reminds us of that booming era.

Today, Maine woodlands support a nearly $13 billion industry that produces lumber for construction and furniture manufacturing, paper, and paper products, such as packaging, paper cups, towels and tissues. The industry accounts for 8.4 percent of state income, according to U.S. Commerce Department figures. Last year, the average American used an estimated 831 pounds of paper products and 43 cubic feet of lumber and plywood.

A full- and part-time labor force of nearly 700,000 works to plant, manage and harvest trees, process and produce paper products, or engage in industry-related jobs such as transportation, distribution and sales.

Maine mills produce high-quality lumber at competitive prices and can compete effectively with any mills in the world. But they can't compete with foreign governments, such as Canada, that subsidize their mills.

As a result, I have been very concerned with Canada's recent decision to terminate its 1986 agreement with the United States that provided for a tax on Canadian lumber exports to the United States to offset Canadian subsidies.

Without this export tax, Canadian mills would flood the U.S. market with cheaper, subsidized lumber and seriously undermine Maine mills' ability to compete.

In a recent letter to the Bush Administration, I joined a number of my Senate colleagues in urging the President to take swift action against Canadian lumber subsidies. I am pleased to report that he did.

On Oct. 4, the President announced a two-fold response to Canada's termination of the agreement. First, the United States has begun to collect an interim duty on Canadian lumber imports equal to the export tax Canada had been collecting under the agreement. Second, the United States has initiated an investigation to determine if the duty should be made permanent to offset Canadian subsidies.

The U.S. lumber industry can compete effectively with Canada and other foreign competitors as long as a level playing field exists. But the field isn't level when Canadian competitors enjoy government subsidies.

The lumber industry has played an enduring role in our society, and its products are central to our way of life. By protecting the industry against unfair competition, we can help sustain its good health in the years ahead.

From Sen. George Mitchell
Health care: the time to act is now

Everywhere I go, in my travels across Maine and around the country, I hear tragic stories of families who have lost their health insurance and have been ruined by the huge costs of providing health care for their loved ones. No problem is of greater importance to American families today than the dire need for reform of our health care system.

Clearly, the health care needs of our nation demand immediate action by governors, Congress and the administration. All of us must work together to accomplish this end.

Earlier this year, I introduced comprehensive health care reform legislation that reflects input from a wide range of sources, including health care professionals, insurers, consumer groups, the states, and many others. I am pleased at the interest and response from persons in Maine and around the country on this bill.

I am currently reviewing suggestions from the director of the Bureau of Health in Maine to include additional preventative health care provisions in the legislation. In addition, I recently had the opportunity to discuss this bill and related issues at the Maine Public Health Association's annual meeting in Portland.

Earlier this fall, I invited Democratic governors from around the country to meet with me and members of Congress to discuss how we can work together to speed passage of comprehensive health care reform.

States have been on the front line in having to cope with the health care crisis. They cannot, however, carry the load alone. The federal government must provide leadership.

The Democratic governors and I recently met and reached agreement on a set of principles to guide our efforts in pushing for enactment of comprehensive health care legislation.

These principles call for a comprehensive approach to health care reform. They call for controlling the skyrocketing cost of health care, as well as providing all Americans access to quality care. They call for cutting the huge amount of unnecessary paperwork and bureaucracy.

The principles also call for providing transferability of health care benefits, which is especially important in these times of economic recession. The loss of a job should never have to mean the loss of health care coverage.

We resolved that the health care needs of Americans demand immediate attention. The Congress and the states, however, must have the serious and committed involvement of the White House. Unfortunately, to date, the Administration has turned a deaf ear on the need for health care reform.

I will continue to seek input from the states to refine proposals to address our nation's health care needs. We must find out as much as we can about the problems and the solutions.

Americans shouldn't have to worry that a serious illness or a pink slip will mean financial ruin. Too many have already suffered that fate. I am committed to working with interested parties in Maine and across the country to enact comprehensive, workable health care reform. The time to act is now.

CARBON DIOXIDE CONCERN

To the Editor:

We are fourth-graders at Crescent Park School in Bethel. We recently read in the newspaper, KIND News Jr. (Kids in Nature Defense Club), about carbon dioxide. Carbon dioxide is a gas that surrounds our Earth and keeps it warm. Our concern is that the Earth is getting too warm because too much carbon dioxide is going into the atmosphere. This is also known as global warming.

Exhaust from vehicles, smoke from burning wood (the burning of rain forests) and fumes from power plants all give off too much carbon dioxide. Here is a list of tips that everyone can try to follow to help cut down on carbon dioxide.

- Ride bikes or walk instead of using a car if you can.
- Take short showers.
- Buy and use the new Earth lights. These lights last longer than regular bulbs and also use less electricity.
- Recycle.
- Turn off lights if they're not needed.

- At night, turn your heat down ten degrees.
- Put an insulated jacket around your hot water heater.
- Plant a tree.
- Wash your laundry in cold water.
- Keep your car tuned up and the tires pumped up to save on gas.

We are concerned about our future. Please help out.

Be cool. Be aware. There's carbon dioxide everywhere.

REMEMBERING PEARL HARBOR

To the Editor:

During the course of one's life, there are events that take place that change your life forever. These events are not limited by geography or size, they can be wonderful, such as the cure for polio, and they also can be shockingly horrid, as was the senseless killings in Texas only a few days ago.

Whether these events are global or personal in nature, good or bad, we must remember them and learn from them. For myself, as a young adult, I can still remember where I was when I heard the president had been assassinated. The cold grey days that followed are a part of my life that will always be there.

For my parents, as freshmen in high school, another grey day in December changed their lives and in fact the world in less than two hours. "Remember Pearl Harbor" was the battle cry for the next four years. Surely serving his country in the South Pacific was not part of my fathers' plans before that day.

Another cold day in December long ago affects our lives to this day. The birth of Christ was a wonderful event, which I hope remains much more than a shopping season to most of us.

It is important to me to remember Christmas for what it is, not for the commercial value put on it. At the same time I feel it is just as important to remember the sacrifice our forefathers gave to preserve the freedoms that we all enjoy. Letters to the editors are not excepted in many nations, what a pity more people don't use this freedom.

December 7, 1991 marks the 50th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor by Japan and this is being remembered around the country. The Bethel merchants association have chosen this date for "A Country Christmas in Bethel." This is a good idea and I hope the kids really have a good time. I only hope they remember at some point during the day that freedom is not free.

Jackson Silver Post 68 and Mundt-Allen Post 81 of the American Legion will be remembering our comrades lost at Pearl Harbor with a service at the Locke Mills Union Church at 1:55 p.m. (exactly fifty years) and other events to be announced later. Please take the few moments it takes to remember how we remain free. Write a letter and remember Pearl Harbor if you don't have the time to join us on December 7, 1991.

REMEMBERING OUR VETERANS

To the Editor:

Seventy-three years ago, President Woodrow Wilson designated Nov. 11 as Armistice Day. On that day we now call Veterans Day. Day, America took time to celebrate the end of World War I and honor her war heroes. The nation and the world believed that the first World War was the War to end all Wars.

Now in these times, we have accepted the hard reality that there is no such thing as final victory over tyranny. We know that the struggle for peace is never done. Experience has taught us that freedom comes at a heavy cost. Since that "war to end all wars," Americans have been called to battle many times—won many great victories and also suffered great losses in World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and recently in Saudi Arabia.

The veterans we honor know better than anyone the value of peace and the awesome price we must pay for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. They have seen the grim face of war first hand. They have witnessed the exhilaration of victory and the terrible consequences of defeat. Many have made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of their country but thousands of others survive and remember.

Nov. 11 is a day for celebration and pride. On Veterans Day, we honor every U.S. service man and woman, past and present, for their heroism and sacrifice. On this day, we thank them for the great gift they have given us. Some veterans have achieved great renown and public recognition for their outstanding bravery. They wear their ribbons and medals proudly, as well they should. But for the majority war was never a glorious experience and most veterans were simply doing what they felt was right, with little

West Paris selectmen reverse parking decision

West Paris selectmen voted last week to allow parking on both sides of the Morse Hill Road near the North Paris Community Hall.

The ruling reverses an earlier decision to allow hall patrons to park only on the left side of Morse Hill Road near the town-owned hall.

During last week's selectmen's meeting, Selectman Wade Rainey said the board acted in response to the majority of public opinion on the matter.

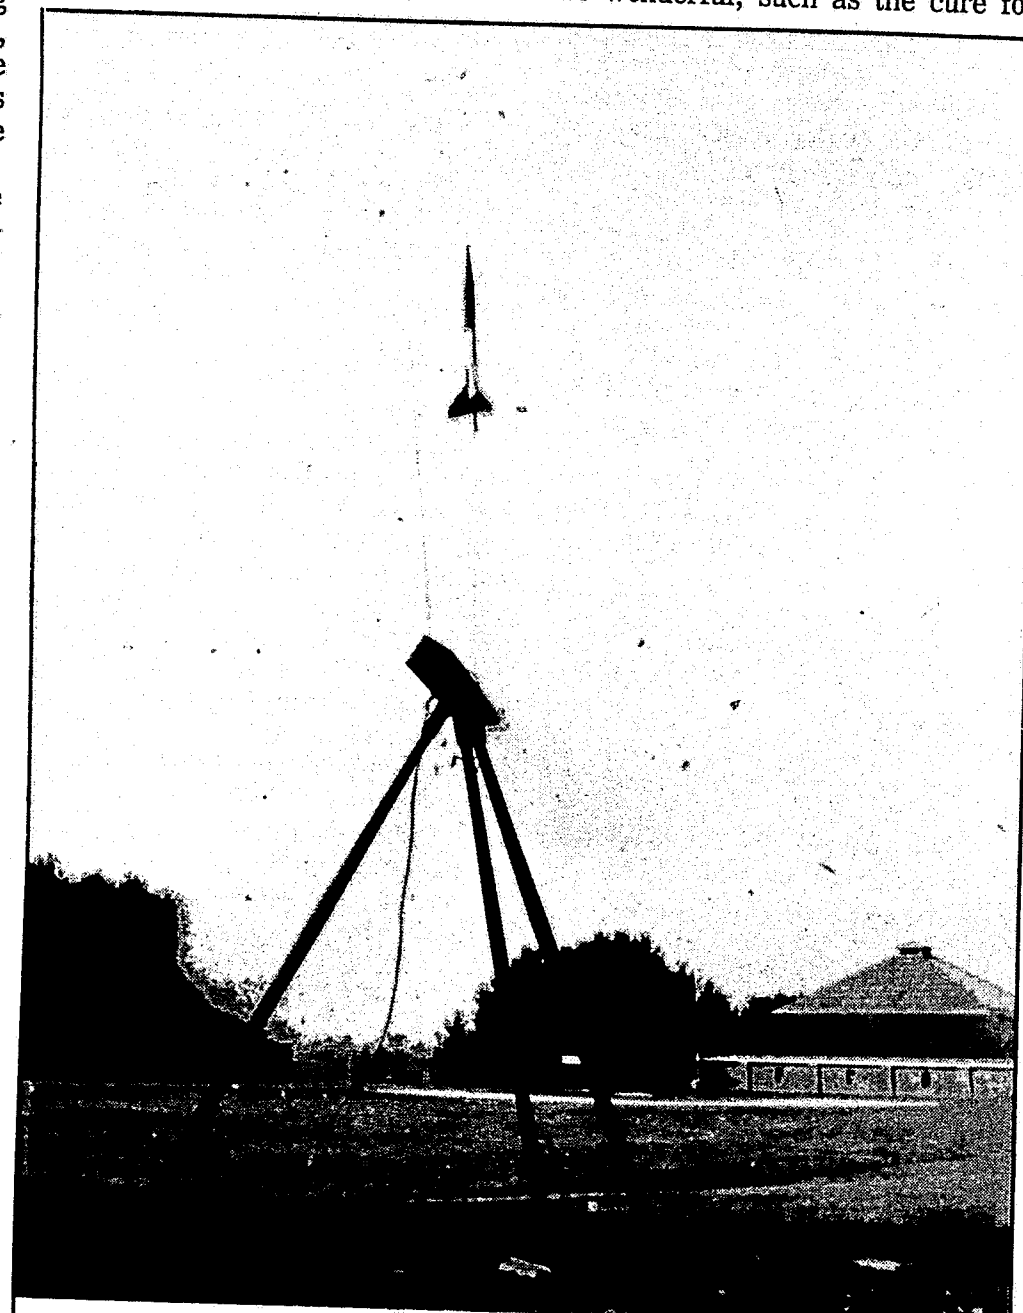

Selectmen held a public hearing on the issue two weeks ago. At that meeting a majority of residents favored allowing parking on both sides of the road, but selectmen said they were concerned that emergency vehicle access on the road might be hampered.

But since the public hearing, the selectmen measured the road and determined it was wide enough to allow for parking on both sides of the road and for emergency vehicle access.

Parking near the hall first became an issue when Morse Hill Road resident Monique Bailey complained last May that patrons of the hall were parking on her property.

The hall's president, Joe Vatcher, petitioned the board to hold a public hearing to settle the dispute.

discomfort. This silent kind of courage rarely earns fanfare or medals. They rose to defend us when we needed them, did their duty and finished the job. Those who were fortunate returned to their homes, jobs and families. Many did not.

Complacency and comfort have made some of our people cynical about our flag and country. Some sneer at patriotism, calling it corny. There are many critics of America's military presence throughout the world. We know America is not without faults, but where else on earth would those who mock patriotism find the freedom to speak out in such a way? They are blessed with privileges found in no other country, thanks to the vigilance of our veterans. Because of them, we are free to live, work and raise our children in peace and prosperity.

The American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary believe that this nation is the best on earth. We make no apology for our patriotism to those cynics who ignore lessons of the past. We hold our veterans in high esteem. We must preserve and protect the freedom our fathers and grandfathers have left to us.

Since the American Legion Auxiliary was founded in 1919, the welfare of our veterans has been our foremost concern. We have made it our personal and organizational responsibility to support and help the veteran by assuring adequate funds for their care. Our concern for veterans and their families governs every program we sponsor. Our volunteers serve in hospitals, VA Medical Centers and in the home, providing for veterans' needs which are beyond the capabilities of professional staffs or family members.

The Auxiliary's existence is a reminder to the nation of the great debt we owe to our veterans.

Today, and every day, let us remember all veterans. They have helped to shape our past and are the defenders of our future! They are indeed heroes. We salute them!

WAS 'ACCIDENTAL' SHOOTING REALLY AN ELABORATE PLOT?

To the Editor:
I've read with much concern and surprise the continuing saga of the hunter safety instructor who accidentally fired a live round at Telstar High School.

The highly intelligent and meticulously competent Dr. Shaw has a successful practice, is staff optometrist at Mt. Abram, shoots competitively, is an accomplished skier and has taught hunter safety for six years. Each of these endeavors demands a high degree of concentration and unwavering attention to detail.

I believe it to be impossible for a man of this caliber to load a live round (with projectile) instead of a blank round (without projectile) into a revolver and fire it in class. I also find it hard to believe that the Bethel police as well as the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife would review the facts, throw their hands in the air. A reaction such as this shows a lack of depth and certainly a lack of imagination on their part.

I feel that in a situation like this where you are dealing with a more than competent professional that you have to look beyond the obvious. It's just possible that some sinister individual or individuals secretly loaded that revolver prior to class, hoping to injure or discredit Dr. Shaw.

It's unfortunate that the police didn't realize that this could have been an elaborate plot. It is fortunate that Dr. Shaw foiled this plot by employing proper safety techniques.

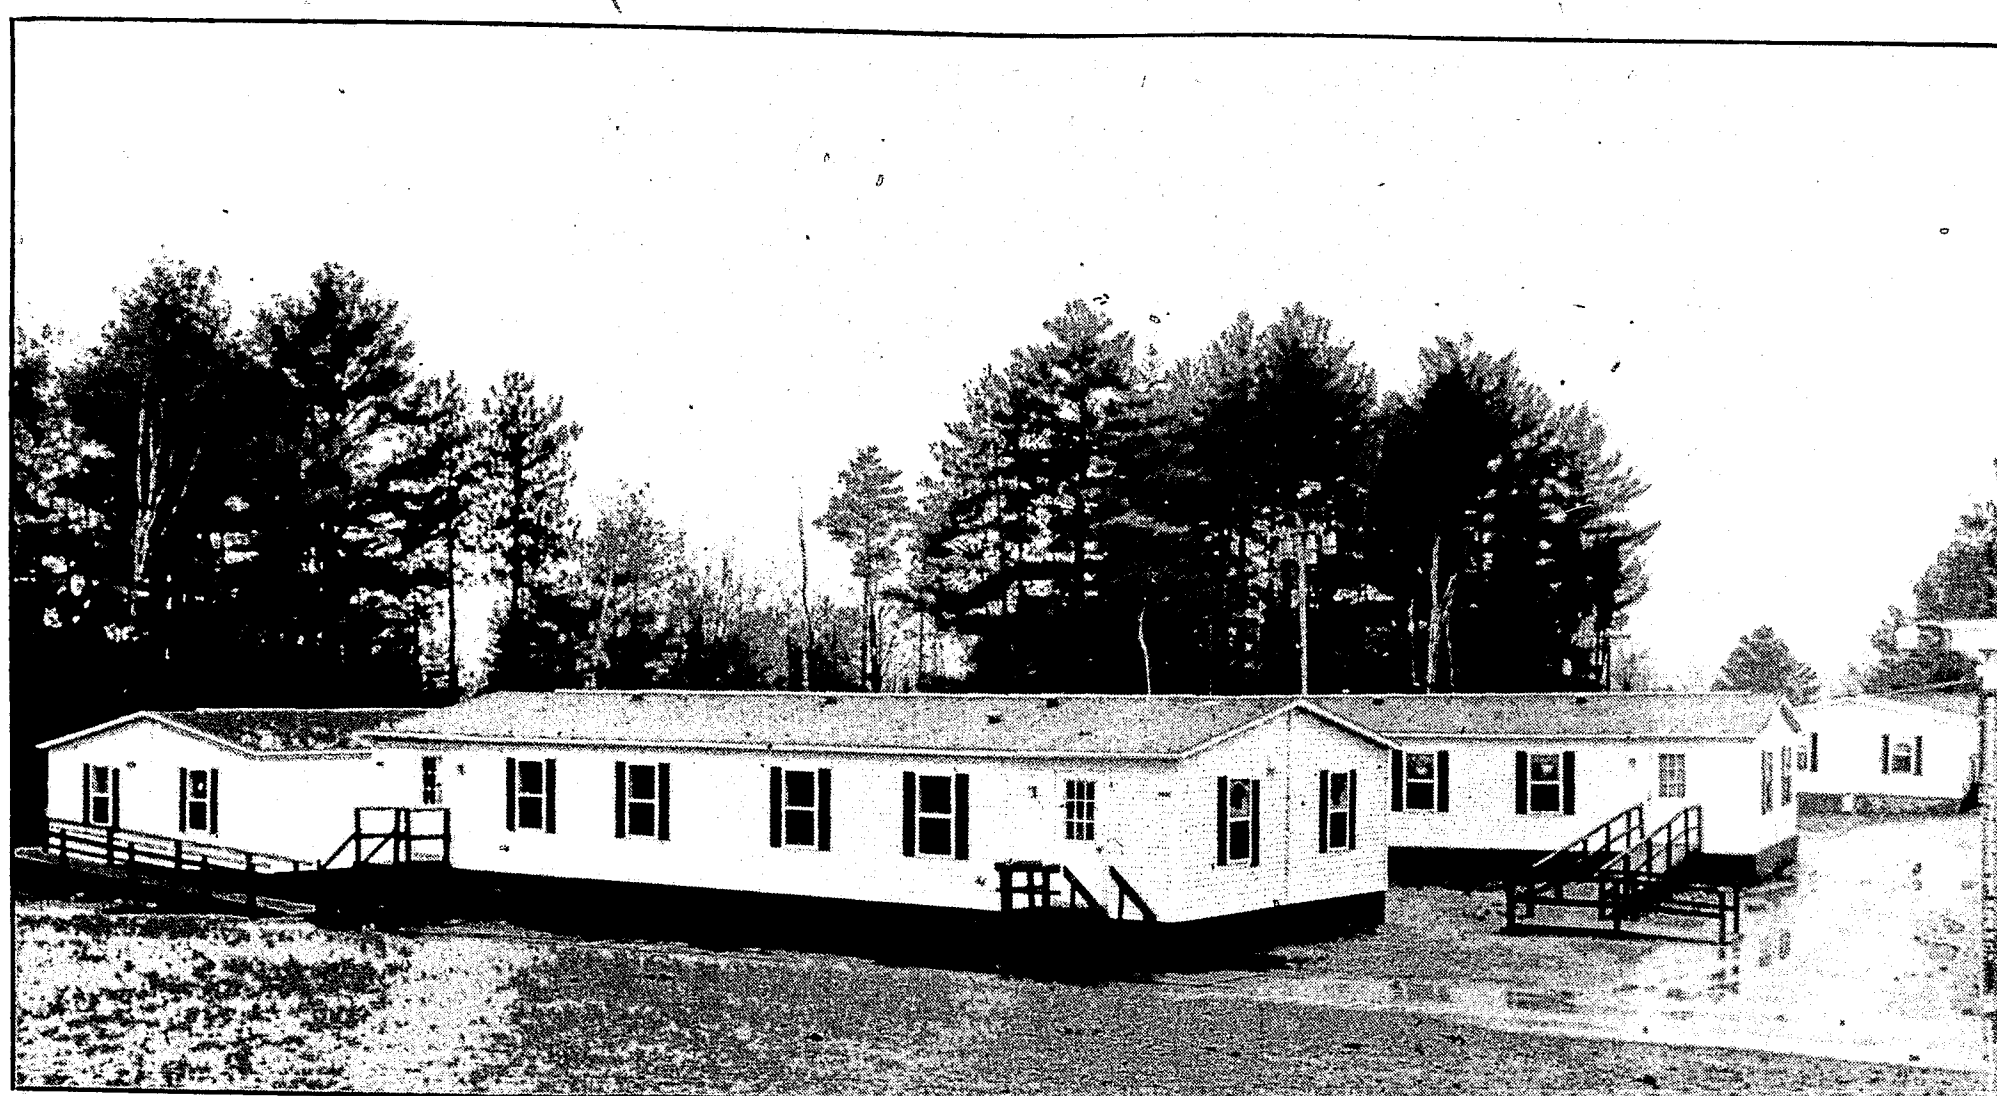

I think that Dr. Shaw is missing the fact that his firing a live round in the classroom only serves to reinforce that even though a live round was fired, the weapon was aimed away from the students and himself when it discharged. I would not hesitate to attend one of his classes, knowing that an incident like this will never again happen. Dr. Shaw having first-hand experience with accidental misfire will in the future greatly emphasize the need for safe weapons handling. Judging from the years of instructing and the number of safe hunters Dr. Shaw has put into the woods around our homes I think that he would be doing the community a great disservice by quitting his post as a hunter safety instructor.

Arthur Joe Fryeburg

(Note: Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman said that all possible ways the live round could have gotten into Dr. Shaw's revolver were investigated thoroughly, including the possibility of someone else deliberately placing the live round in with the dummy rounds. There was "absolutely no evidence" of any such tampering, according to Chief Bellman.)

PORTABLE PARK—Last year all portable classrooms in SAD #44 tested at or above the state recommended levels of carbon dioxide. High levels of the gas can cause fatigue and dizziness, but district principals say none of the symptoms caused by poor air quality were reported by teachers or students last year. Since the April testing, air exchangers were installed in all portables that house day-long classes of students. These Crescent Park School portables, which house five classrooms, the library and special services offices, are scheduled for retesting soon according to buildings and grounds supervisor Burnie Rice.

Ford said she made her own survey of attendance records to see if any health problems were showing up. She said she found none. "There was no significant difference in the attendance in the kindergarten portable compared to those who were not," she said. "It was not my feeling that there were a lot of kids coming in and complaining of headaches or any other symptoms associated with poor air."

Part of the reason there were few complaints, she said, might be that the kindergarten students were in and out of the building several times a day.

Buildings and grounds supervisor Burnie Rice and district officials became aware in April that there was an air quality problem—when Rice converted the readings he took for the state into CO2 parts per million (PPM) levels for each room.

The state recommends that CO2 levels be no higher than 1,000 PPM. The highest CO2 levels in SAD #44 were recorded in the EBS kindergarten portable—4,200 PPM. All portables tested in the district last year were calculated to have 1,000 PPM or above.

Craig said that neither parents nor the school board's buildings and grounds committee was notified of the high CO2 levels. Rather, Craig said, since it was budget time he went ahead and built the cost of air exchangers into the budget, and he didn't notify parents because the school year was almost over and the windows in the classes were already being kept open due to the warm weather.

Crescent Park and Woodstock elementary school principals David Murphy and Frank Boynton, said they received no complaints from students about air quality in the schools' portables.

Over the summer air exchangers were installed in all portable classrooms—that is, portables that house students all day. Air exchangers were not installed in portables used as a library, special services offices or music, Rice said.

The air exchangers cost about $250. Rice said the air in the classrooms is now replaced about every three hours or at least twice during the school day. He added that air is also exchanged when students open the door while coming and going from the classroom. Rice said he will be retesting for CO2 in portable classrooms soon.

School board building and grounds committee chairman Ray Harrington said the board is satisfied for now that the air exchangers are doing the intended job. "Rest assured that kids and staff safety is the number one concern of the school board," he said. "We'd close the building and move the kids out before we'd ever accept less than perfect conditions."

"There was a problem," Craig said. "It was brought to our attention and we addressed it."

PROJECTING HYDRANT—The century-old fire hydrant at the corner of Main and Clark streets broke and had to be replaced Monday. After consultation with the town's highway and fire departments, as well as with the town engineer, the Bethel Water District elected to locate the hydrant temporarily a bit farther out into the street, in order to better accommodate next summer's proposed revitalization work on lower Main Street. The hydrant will be moved to a less intrusive location when that work is complete, water district trustee Bob Saunders said.

CHAMPIONSHIP SWEEP—Gould seniors Jessica Miller and Jason Walz, captains of the girls' and boys' cross-country teams, and Gould Headmaster Bill Clough, show off the MAISAD championship trophies captured by the team last week at Hebron Academy. The Gould junior varsity also prevailed, earning Gould its first championship sweep.

Gould runners sweep

Gould Academy won the Maine Independent School Championships in boys, girls, and junior varsity cross-country running earlier this week, led by area runners. Lisa Gowell and Carrie Ait, both of Auburn, finished 6th and 7th respectively, and with Jessica Miller of Brunswick in 3rd, Erika Christie of Rumford 11th, and Samantha Langlois of Bethel 14th, the Gould runners were really only challenged by North Yarmouth Academy which finished 6th in the boys race. Gould was supported by Jessica Trundy in 15th and Bekka Kuzik in 24th.

In the boys race, Patrick Cote of Farmington took 4th in the varsity race to lead Gould to the championship, outdistancing her nearest challenger, Hyde School, by a 15-point margin. Other scorers were: Regis and Guillaume de Ramel of Newport, R.I. (5th and 10th respectively), Sean Sims of Durham, Vt. (11th), and Jason Walz of Troy, N.H. (15th).

David Jorgensen won the JV race, with a time that would have put him in a scoring position in the varsity race. Gould swept the top five places in the meet, with Paul Cote of Farmington, Josh Brethauer of Kennebunk, Eric Stirling of Greenville, and Dan Boyle of Hanover, N.H. running ahead of a number of other team's varsity runners.

chlorine was shut off. By Monday, he said, the chemical taste had begun to disappear, and residents should soon "return to the taste they've come to know and love."

About 50 water district customers are on the West Bethel line, Saunders said, but for the rest of the system's customers—whose water supply comes from Chapman Brook—chlorination will remain a fact of life.

But there is some good news for all the district's customers, Saunders said: The district's application to be exempted from the federal Safe Drinking Water act has so far drawn favorable comments from the state board reviewing it.

If the application is approved, he said, it will save the district having to double its rates in order to pay for the filtration operation.

A decision is expected by Dec. 31, he said.

Telstar mock election nixes turnpike widening but OKs five bond issues

Fifty-five Telstar High School students participating in the 1991 Student Mock Election voted by a margin of more than three to one not to widen the Maine Turnpike, and they approved five of the seven bond issues on this year's ballot.

Students were also encouraged this year to register to vote in the actual election. A new law allows young people to register at the age of 17, so that they will be ready to vote when they reach the legal age requirement of 18.

Twenty-three Telstar students took advantage of the opportunity to register. Thirteen registered as Republicans; five registered as Democrats; one as a Libertarian; and four as independents.

For the school's mock election, specimen ballots were distributed to students in Mr. Abbott's public issues classes, Mr. Raymond's civics class, and the law class taught by Mr. McCann and Mrs. Munn. There were 55 students who voted in the mock election. The results are as follows:

Question One. Turnpike widening—Yes: 41, No: 13.

Question Two. Correctional facilities—Yes: 22, No: 32.

Question Three. Water supply/pollution control—Yes: 32, No: 23.

Question Four. Job retention—Yes: 35, No: 19.

Question Five. Land purchase—Yes: 41, No: 13.

Question Six. Recycling/solid waste—Yes: 42, No: 12.

Question Seven. State parks and historic buildings—Yes: 26, No: 29.

Question Eight. Transportation facilities—Yes: 35, No: 20.

Results for the constitutional amendment were not available.

Rebel hockey

Telstar scored the first goal with seven minutes and 50 seconds left before half-time. Senior Crystal Chase scored on a rebound off the Falcon's goalie's pads.

The Rebels continued to press the Freeport defense in the second-half, but to no avail. The Falcons were turned back repeatedly by the Rebel defense, but finally slipped through the line and scored with under five minutes left in regular play.

"When they scored it was at point blank range," said Telstar goalie Danielle Bernier. "I just tried to stop it. There was nobody else there. The girl wasn't more than five feet away from me at the most." This was only the third goal Telstar opponents have been able to score all season.

The rest of the Rebel defense got more of work-out Saturday than in other recent play-off games. Half-back Jen Bailey intercepted several mid-field passes by the Falcons. When she missed, the fullbacks moved in to clear the ball.

"At times it was scary out there," said fullback Bridget Remington, "because sometimes we had a big gap between the halfbacks and the fullbacks and it looked like (Freeport) might make a break."

"It was scary," agreed fullback Noelle Gauthier. "They tried to make some fast breaks. It was confusing, too. We'd get ready to clear the ball and they'd take it back."

In overtime, the action went back and forth across the field, but in the end Telstar prevailed. "We knew it was possible," co-coach Sally Hannon said. "We were not expecting any kind of a pushover. We knew it was going to be a tough game."

Co-coach Gail Wright added, "Freeport looked like they were going to charge down the middle of the field a few times, but the defense got a stick on it first."

Telstar racked up 16 shots on goal, six saves and eight penalty corners. Freeport took six shots, had two penalty corners and 14 saves.

Missed deadline

years," said selectman Marie Bartlett, "and all that happens is that the pile grows and grows."

"DEP's whole rationale for licensing the site was that they'd have more control over it," Bartlett said, "but now I'm sure they're going to say they can't do anything because they're afraid to put the Gordons out of business."

Under the terms of the consent agreement, Gordon faces fines of $250 a day if he failed to remove the required number of tires from each of the two Albany sites. There is, however, no such fine specified for failing to meet the size requirement at the Greenwood site.

Susan Gordon, who runs the tire business with her husband, told The Citizen that because of the impending fines at the Albany sites, Gordon's three employees have been concentrating their efforts there—and they have not had time to address the problem in Greenwood.

"We had to move them or be fined," she said.

Gordon acknowledged that the Greenwood pile continues to grow

(even if the tires from Albany are not counted), but she said the influx has been slowed, both by the recession and the fact that the company's employees have been too busy to seek out new tires.

She said the company is finding new markets for the tires, but that DEP's demand for a "flow through" operation in Greenwood is completely unrealistic, since it is often necessary to store the tires for some length of time before markets can be found.

"I don't know how they can come in here once every six months and tell you how to do your business," she said.

The DEP's McGovern, however, said: "The intent of the license was to allow (Gordon) to operate a flow-through operation, not to collect more tires than he's disposing of. The situation up there now indicates to me that he doesn't want to run a flow-through operation."

Susan Gordon said the company plans to focus now on bringing the Greenwood site into compliance. "I'd like to get (the pile) down and into shape by next summer," she said.

Town planners trying to work with Gordons on compliance

Greenwood Planning Board Member Heywood Sawyer to Susan Gordon—"If you come up with a workable plan (the DEP) will buy it, because they don't have any choice. We've got to come up with a plan and say to the DEP 'You guys screwed up, and now we've got a plan to fix it.'"

Gordon met with the Greenwood planners Monday to review the status of Gordon Tire's application for a tire storage license from the town, and the planners expressed a willingness to try to work out a realistic plan for bringing the Rabbit Road site into compliance with both DEP and town regulations.

(Greenwood adopted its own tire storage/disposal site regulations in 1988, and in 1989 rejected as incomplete an application for a license for the Gordons' Rabbit Road site. The Gordons did not reopen the application until August of this year, when the site received its state license.)

At Monday night's planning board meeting there was only brief discussion of the size of the Rabbit Road tire pile. Most of the meeting was taken up with attempts to address the insurance and fire protection problems at the site and with discussing what the town would require from the Gordons before a license was granted.

No firm deadlines were set by the town and no promises made by Susan Gordon—but both sides stressed their desire to develop a workable compliance plan.

In the past the town has threatened legal action to close the site down, but there appears to be little current support on the board for such an approach.

And any legal action against the site would have to be initiated by the town Code Enforcement Officer and selectmen, rather than by the planning board.

Planning Board Chairman Wayne Hakala said Tuesday that he planned to meet with the selectmen at their regular meeting Tuesday evening, in order to update them on the status of the site. He told The Citizen he did not intend to recommend that the town take legal action to shut the operation down.

In a related matter, the Greenwood selectmen recently approved an easement to allow Central Maine Power Co. to run electric lines along the Rabbit Road (from Vernon Street) to bring electrical power to the Gordons, whose home is located adjacent to the tire site.

Ranks closed on Friday, Nov. 1 and reports are going home on Friday, Nov. 8. Parent-teacher conferences will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 12 in the afternoon and evening.

The children will have an extra long weekend due to the Veterans' Day holiday and the conferences. Conference slips have been sent home and schedules have been set up. As always, we have tried to accommodate parents with more than one child in our schools. If you have not received any notice of the conferences, please call the school.

Kindergarten classes are continuing to work on a class book. Everyone is making a page of the book. This week they are learning about the letter F and are making the capital and small f in their sand trays. They are practicing and reviewing the letters A-E. In lieu of a Halloween party, room mothers, Barbara Sheard and Monique Bailey provided special treats at the regular snack time. The classes have also made special Halloween placemats. They have traced, cut and pasted witches. They have enjoyed their Halloween poetry books.

The first-graders are studying the habits of animals in autumn. They are learning how animals get ready for winter and are comparing that with the way humans get ready for winter. They are making their own autumn booklets entitled When I Walk in the Forest. Each page tells about a category of wild life getting ready for winter.

They are beginning a new story called The Wild Beast, and they are enjoying a new big book called Time For A Rhyme and Pumpkin, Pumpkin. They have carved a Jack O'Lantern and are reciting poetry from their booklet Hello, Halloween. In math they are doing activities comparing the length of the unit cube trains graphs and learning about the concepts more and less.

Travis Stearns is the special helper in the second grade this week. Travis and his classmates are having fun with pumpkin math. They are estimating the lines, circumference and number of seeds in their pumpkin. Of course they do the actual counting and measuring and also carve out a Jack O'Lantern.

The third-graders presented their scarecrow show on Halloween. Their collection of scarecrow autobiographies, Scarecrows I Have Known, was on display. Neat scarecrows were around the room with the children and visitors were encouraged to learn about the autobiographies of each scarecrow.

The class is working on the challenge of fitting small, triangular tangrams onto a square in math. This involves estimating and figuring out different strategies. They are reviewing the skin and skeletal systems in health and in reading they are working with the sound of ch. Mr. Grigsby is starting his Punsy program, which is designed to help students take charge of their own thoughts and feelings. This is in conjunction with our CAP program.

The fourth-graders are learning about the blueberry industry in Washington County in Maine Studies. In science they are going to be making directional compasses and learn-

VISITING CRIME DOG—McGruff the crime dog visited the Andover Elementary School last week, along with Oxford County Sheriff's Office Captain James Miclon. Miclon dusted for fingerprints while his buddy McGruff shared safety tips with the students.

Take Time to Discard
These Rx Medicines

Prescription medicines are powerful chemicals that benefit the lives of millions of persons every day. Medicines must be stored and handled properly because of their potential to produce adverse effects which, in some instances, can be life threatening.

A pharmacy association representing the nation's 40,000 independent retail pharmacists recently published prescription medicine storage and use guidelines in the NABP Journal. These guidelines contain a list of items that should be discarded. These items include:

1. Any medicine that is more than two years old or has changed color; liquid medicines that have a residue at the bottom of the bottle.
2. Aspirin tablets that are crumbly or give off a strong vinegar odor.
3. Nose drops that have become cloudy or have developed a sediment.
4. Hydrogen peroxide that no longer bubbles vigorously when applied to the skin or scalp.
5. Ointments that have separated, developed spots, or become discolored.

I took a vacation last week with Dotie and Herb Adams of Hanover. We went on Saturday and spent a long weekend with friends on Long Island, N.Y. We spent the next two days touring historical and well-known sights on the island-Mountauk Point Lighthouse and Park on the very easternmost tip of Long Island, saw millions of pumpkins, the fields marked by orange balloons floating in the air, visited the Long Island "Fare", the Teddy Roosevelt estate and museum at Oyster Bay, ate dinner at the famous Claudio's Restaurant which has been operated in the same location by the same family for four generations. On Tuesday we drove to Pennsylvania and spent the rest of the week with my brother and wife. One day we went in Philadelphia, saw the Liberty Bell, toured Independence Hall and Ben Franklin Court, etc., toured an Amish farm one day in Lancaster County, the Landis Museum and others and Mt. Hope Winery where scenes from Edgar Allan Poe's works were to be staged on Halloween. On Saturday we returned as far as Plymouth, N.H. where Erin Adams attends college. We stayed overnight and went to the PSC/UMF field hockey game where Erin sang the Star Spangled Banner before the start of the game. We returned home Sunday night after a very exciting and enlightening week. "Bob" (Marsfers) York with his driver Marc and friend from Montpelier, Vt. visited Elmira Doyen last Sunday bringing a Sunday dinner for all.

The Buchanans who had been visiting this area returned to their homes in Virginia and North Carolina Saturday.

Dave Salway spent the day Tuesday in Portland and Old Orchard Beach. His son Brandon underwent laser surgery on his spine at a Portland hospital returning home that evening, much relieved.

Finances occupy Andover selectmen

Town treasurer Alex Legault again submitted a letter to Andover selectmen in lieu of his attending their meeting last week. He requested the selectmen review an attached draft of the value of real and personal property belonging to the town, which is needed as an item for the Town Audit by Dec. 31.

The selectmen questioned assessments of various town buildings and the amount of insurance coverage on each. Al Morrison of Kyes Insurance will be asked to appear before the board to review the fire coverage. Selectman Wayne Delano also requested that Kyes Delano also cost of building replacement insurance versus the coverage the town has presently.

The Board received the Department of Environmental Protection's permit by rule application for the closing of the town landfill. Town administrative assistant, Rebecca Schachter, called the DEP about modifying the status of the application since part of the dump will be used for recycling. The selectmen voted to have the dump surveyed and to get estimates on the retaining wall necessary for recycling, prior to their purchase of the dump land.

The selectmen signed the Comprehensive Plan implementation grant application, which must be at the Office of Comprehensive Planning by December. It will be kept on file there until such time the town approves the plan.

Selectman Wayne Delano stated he is drafting another letter in reply to Gov. John McKernan's recent response to the town in regard to having the state share equally in the loss of revenue due to devalued properties because of shoreline zoning. (See related story.)

"McKernan sidestepped the issue and didn't answer the question," Delano said. "Everyone wants to keep Andover pristine and wild for them and expects Andover to pay for it. There must be a more equitable way for the state to pay for this, not just the landowners. The renters and non-property owners should pay for it; and I would like the out-of-staters to pay for it, too."

Also in regard to the loss of value to owners of shorelands zoning property, the board received a letter from state representative Malachi Anderson of Caribou who sympathized with the plight of the town. He stated he had suggested in his area that landowners owning such property be only assessed 40 percent of their taxes over 10 years. This suggestion, he said, "was not well accepted by planning board members" in his area. Andover's letter to McKernan had been forwarded to Anderson by Rep. Phyllis Erwin.

Selectman chair Fred Emerson said, "The Snowmobile Club wishes to apply to the state for grant money, but they can't if we don't accept the Comprehensive Plan". He said Theresa Stelling of the Office of Comprehensive Planning had also told him there was money available in grants for towns to purchase recreational land. Delano said he doubted that there was any money available, "since the state departments have to cut 10 percent." The board will investigate applying for grants.

John Stowell of Timberlands sought input from the board in regard to removing a trailer on Black Brook. The owners of the trailer leased land from Timberlands. It was agreed that rather than burning the trailer that it be trucked to the dump. Timberlands also agreed to pay back taxes on the property of $85.

Planning Board vice chairman Mark Burlamachi appeared before the board to discuss a camp owned by Ernest Hart which has an addition which was built in the brook. Burlamachi will talk to the owners and seek information as to when the camp was moved, and when the addition put on. The selectmen are also concerned about the town's liability should the camp fall into the brook.

The selectmen voted to allow Animal Control Officer Gary Vaughn buy an animal cage for his truck for $108, and other minor equipment he needs.

Forum will ask western Mainers: Are you satisfied with state government?

A new, non-partisan, grassroots group of western Maine citizens will try and answer the question, "Are you satisfied with state government?" as well as, "Can you do anything to improve it between elections?" at a public forum on Wednesday, Nov. 13.

The forum will take place at the Fairbanks Union Church, Route 4, just north of Farmington, from 7 to 9 p.m. All residents of western Maine are encouraged to attend.

The group, which has named itself The Western Mountains Caucus, is comprised of western Maine residents from Hebron to Rangely, Bethel to Dover-Foxcroft. The caucus formed out of what the members saw as a need for better recognition of western Maine in the legislative process.

In terms of natural resources, the tourist industry, manufacturing industry and the fact that western Maine comprises 38 percent of the total land area of the entire state, the western mountains region should be a powerful influence in the legislative process—but it is not.

At a time when party politics during the legislative sessions have taken priority over common sense solutions to problems, citizens on the grassroots level, setting party registration aside, must take the initiative and urge those solutions both in their towns and in Augusta, forum organizers said.

They added that they hope the forum in Farmington will be the first of many in western Maine, to encourage residents to gain a sense of regionalism as well as empowerment on the local level.

The Western Maine Caucus encourages residents throughout western Maine to attend this first forum in Farmington to increase that sense of regionalism and to learn how one person can have an impact on the local and state levels.

Thirty-one western Maine legislators have been invited to attend. The format will include group discussions, a panel of former legislators, organizers and "do-ers" and will concentrate on what are the problems—and the solutions to those problems—in western Maine.

COMMUNITY II

CONFERENCE

PLANNING OUR FUTURE

Community Conference II: Planning our Future is getting closer. The day-long event, set for Friday, Nov. 15 at the Locke Mills Legion Hall will provide residents of the local area, including the SAD #44 towns, an opportunity to discuss vital issues facing area communities and residents at present and in the future. The participants will work together through the day to identify goals, resources and action steps which will lead to activities once the conference is over.

The Community Conference is one aspect of an on-going process which began with the discussions precipitated by the threatened departure of NTL from Bethel in June of 1991. The first activities have been the meetings of the 20 Focus Groups whose reports have been published over the past three weeks. Reaction to the Focus Group process has been positive, with several groups discovering the value of meeting with others in similar businesses or with similar interests. The notes from the groups are being used by the planning committee and the conference consultant, Edie Seashore, to structure the conference day.

At the conference, attendees will work in a variety of settings, in both large and small groups, on issues of particular interest to them. The goal is to have those attending emerge from the day with a sense of purpose and a commitment to action as part of an on-going project.

One question that has been asked—Why have a conference on a Friday, a work day? The planning committee deliberated about this, and felt that the overall attendance would not be good on a Saturday, based on similar events held over the years. It is hoped that local employers will support the Conference goals by allowing participation by employees who wish to attend.

Those planning to attend are asked to register with the Adult Education office, 824-2780. There is no fee but it is helpful to know numbers in order to provide seating and materials.

The Legion will be selling lunch items, or attendees may bring a lunch. Following the conference, at 5:30 there will be a Community Spaghetti Supper at the Locke Mills Town Hall sponsored by the Greenwood Fire Auxiliary. The charge is $4 for adults $2.50 for children. There will be musical entertainment with supper.

The following are reports from recent Focus Groups:

Youth
By the group of youth present at this meeting, it was discussed and decided that of all that we went over, these were the main points/issues we felt were the most important for us and were those that we want to be emphasized at the conference.

Youth Center or more community (out of school) activities.
The need of activities, alternatives.

With the idea that we are willing to start small and the respect of the adults to realize that we are responsible enough to handle something like this, but obviously need their help.

The importance of the need for things outside the school, because of the stringent requirements and rules that apply due to the nature of the institution.

Retailers

The Bethel area retailers present have a cautious optimism about our future. We see long-term planning as becoming increasingly important and that tourism is important to the area.

They want town governments that are sensitive and responsive to business needs as well as their populations in general.

They think that the area's youths are important and would like to see activities and recreation for them. Retailers feel that economic diversity should be strived for!

The Focus Group met Oct. 16. The participants were: Ann Friedlander, Betsey Cooper, Rick Whitney, Nancy Cummings, Carol Parker, Tom House, Robin Zinchuk.

Recreation

A dozen or so folk who participated in the discussion about recreation would include the following points. They are set out in note form for the sake of brevity.

This area—The Greater Bethel Area—is rich in resources for recreation and sports (mountains, lakes, ski areas, rivers, trails, forests, playing fields, courts, ranges, to mention but a few). Much is already done for the population, thanks to dedicated work by various coaches, recreation boards, and other volunteers. The Maine tradition of public access to private land is helpful in affording opportunity.

There is already an emphasis in the school system on life-long sports, and that should continue. The health and sociological benefits are obvious.

A need exists to coordinate the diverse demands as well as experiments that currently exists throughout the area. It is possible, for example, to have Jeep jambores and hiking coexist, as long as resources, expectations, areas, concerns, hopes and so on are shared and resolved. This need to cooperate is especially true amongst the various towns which comprise the area—the leadership of which have at least a perceived history of non-cooperation, if not enmity, between themselves. Many of the resources owned by school systems, towns, or privately might be more available if those responsible for them could be assured of appropriate and controlled use.

Some kind of central coordinating process is probably necessary. This seen at this point as a Recreation Director for the SAD #44 area, whose charge is to coordinate all adult and children's programs. The dream of one focused area replete with all kinds of recreation facilities is a hard one to ignore, but the counter thought is that the area already has resources (as noted above), and they merely need to be organized and coordinated. Could the YMCA help... or what model is the right one for us? We should be justifiably proud of the things that are already happening, and only wish to make it better. Surely the idea of the Bethel Area being perceived as the Recreation Capital of the World is not too lofty a goal.

Dreams must, however, be tempered, and it is recognized that money, for example, is short. But dedicated and committed people, well organized, encouraged by supportive political structures, aided by good press, and helped by good communication through a committed educational system, can go a long way to overcome hurdles such as parents with less time for their children, a litigation minded society, reluctant to allow access to resources for fear of liability, or low funding levels "from away."

And so recreation is seen as a central theme in the life and fabric of this area. Opportunities attract people. Life-long sports enrich our lives. The practice of sports and recreation are seen as a vital part of an educational and maturation process for our children. This area's economy is integrally linked to recreation.

Environment

The group focusing on environmental concerns met in October at the Bingham House. This group saw many reasons to be proud of Bethel's environment as well as of environmental awareness.

Active groups, such as the Mahosug Land Trust, the Conservation Commission, and Friends of the Androscoggin, as well as local educational institutions, such as Outward Bound, Gould Academy, Telstar, and the Maine Conservation School, are all taking action on environmental issues.

The Androscoggin River is much cleaner than it was 20 years ago, and we have begun to move toward more responsible waste management. Our environment is an incredible asset to this community in many different ways. Almost all who live here chose this community because of the beauty, accessibility, and variety of its natural environment.

This focus group would like to see the environment protected and managed in an enlightened way so as to meet the needs of our community for centuries to come. With compromise and intelligent decision-making, the recreationists, visitors, the wood products industry, both animal and plant life, and our own residents should be able to share our environment.

We would like to see a comprehensive regional plan for the northern forests, a sensible local comprehensive plan, more cooperation between towns, a strong and diversified "clean" local economy.

We would like local citizens to share our concern for stewardship of the environment but to understand also that stewardship involves growth, change, and management. Stewardship also implies wise and careful use and recycling of all our resources. This includes our energy sources, and to this end we would like to see our transportation systems improved, our highways planned wisely, and high quality rail service restored.

One of our most powerful resources is our people, and we would like to see our local population well educated and actively involved in protecting our environment. A particular asset is our retirees and elderly citizens, whose wisdom and perspective are invaluable.

Other task force notes

The Bethel Area Task Force and Conference Planning Committee have been meeting regularly to work on the conference and other business. The next Task Force meeting will be Sunday night, Nov. 17, at 7 p.m. at the Bingham House. It will be a very important meeting, to set new directions for the group. Doreen Johnson named VP at Kendall Insurance Ronald C. Kendall, president of Kendall Insurance in Bethel has announced that office manager Doreen Johnson, CIC, has been named a vice-president of the firm. Johnson started her insurance career in 1969 with USF&G Company in Portland. Moving through the ranks, from computer data entry to accounting clerk, she was promoted to policy services supervisor in 1976. After moving to the Bethel area in September of 1977, she joined the staff of Kendall Insurance as customer service representative. She received her property and casualty agent's license in 1980 and, shortly after, assumed the office manager's position. "Doreen has shown her insurance expertise in many ways," says fellow officer Scott Dennis, "but we're especially proud of the CIC (Certified Insurance Counselor) designation that she's held since 1986. Those that pass the various CIC tests and commit themselves to continuing education represent the top one percent of insurance agents in the country." A native of Berlin, N.H., Johnson resides in Bryant Pond with her husband, Jeffrey, and daughter, Betsy.

Gould theatre workshop will present two plays

The Gould Academy Student Theatre Workshop will present two pieces on Nov. 8 and 9, at 7:30 p.m. in Bingham Hall on the Gould Campus. The 12-person cast will perform: Interview from America Hurrah, by Jean-Claude Van Itallie, and Chamber Music by Arthur Kopit.

Van Itallie's play is described as a "Fugue for Eight Actors." It examines through a form of verbal physical choreography, the mechanism of modern urban America. According to Gould theatre director Carol Fiske, "It is not naturalistic theatre, but rather one which intends to create a mental space for the audience" by creating an attitude and an impression about the culture it depicts.

Chamber Music opens to the strains of Mozart. It is a play set in an asylum, and it explores questions of sanity, reality, and time. Each of the characters in this piece believes herself to be a known historical figure. Says Fiske, "The interchanges at their small corner of the world are both comical and tragic."

Students in the acting company performing these two pieces are: Tracey Bachelier, Nedda Campbell, Tristin Cutbert, Samantha Decker, Birgitta Dubin, Jill Nowak, Andrea Parrelli, Amber Riddell, Leslie Rymer, Rachel Slack, Alexis Slaybaugh, and Melanie Stowell.

The Nov. 8 and 9 performances are open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Gould to host symposium on multiculturalism

Differing views on racial and ethnic diversity will be aired by leading proponents of the nation's two most prominent schools of thought on multiculturalism in education, at a symposium entitled "Multiculturalism in Schools: A Time for Clarification," hosted by Gould Academy in Bethel on Thursday, Nov. 7.

According to the forum's organizer, Dr. Harry Dresser, "Perceptions of multiculturalism range from the next obvious and appropriate evolutionary step for American society to a racist anti-Westernism."

Educators in public and private schools are being challenged by both formal and informal mandates to accommodate new perspectives as a result of the changing cultural makeup of the American population, according to Dresser, who is associate headmaster at Gould.

The forum's main speakers represent opposite poles on the subject of how changes should take place in schools. Randolph Carter, director of the Office of Diversity and Multicultural Services of the National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS) will speak for the need of schools to accommodate to influxes of students of different cultural backgrounds. A contrasting view will be given by Dr. Yehudi Webster, Professor of Pan-African Studies at California State University.

Sixty members of the Independent Schools Association of Northern New England, the sponsoring organization, are expected to attend the forum, which will take place at the Bethel Inn Conference Center from 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Public school educators are also invited and may register through Dr. Dresser's office at Gould Academy at 824-2161.

Newry selectmen name new clerk

Newry selectmen have appointed Sylvia Gray as town clerk, treasurer and tax collector. She will serve until town meeting in March, when the town holds annual elections.

Gray replaces June Swan, who had held the three positions for the last 15 years. Swan died unexpectedly at her home two weeks ago.

Gray has served as administrative assistant to the selectmen for two years and was also appointed the deputy clerk in March. Gray said she will continue to serve as the selectmen's assistant.

At yesterday's (Nov. 5) meeting, selectmen gave deputy chiefs Brad Wight and Alan Fleet operational responsibility for the town fire department until the return of Chief Tink Conkright.

Conkright's son Michael was injured in a car accident last Monday and remains in critical condition at Maine Medical Center. Wight will act as chief in Conkright's absence.

Selectmen also voted to allow town clerk Gray to accept building permits at the town office. The town's building inspector will review and sign the permits or call applicants to further discuss the permit approval process, Gray said.

Amy Ford sings in college production

Amy Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Ford of Bethel, played the role of a singer in the female chorus in the Oct. 30-Nov. 2 production of "The Love of the Nightingale," at St. Michael's College in Colchester, Vt. The production is the St. Michael's 1991 entry in the American College Theatre Festival.

Ford is a junior fine arts major at the college. The play, showcasing 31 student actors, uses an ancient myth of sisters, Philomele and Procne, to connect violence down through the centuries into our own time. The play presents an unwanted truth that reverberates through time, with "classical austerity and great verbal

Livestock owners eligible for federal drought funds

Lester H. Bailey, chairperson of the Oxford County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announces that, because of drought conditions this summer, Oxford County has been authorized to implement the Emergency Feed Program for 1991. To be eligible, livestock owners must have suffered losses of 40 percent or more in the value of livestock feed production and not have sufficient feed for the feeding period. Eligibility requires they must receive 10 percent or more of their gross annual receipts from the production of grain and livestock. On Nov. 12, a meeting for livestock producers will be held at the Agricultural Service Center in South Paris, beginning at 10 a.m. The program will be explained at that time. All interested producers are urged to attend this meeting.

Directory published on Maine wood processors

The University of Maine College of Forest Resources' Office of Professional Development and the Maine Science and Technology Commission have published a directory designed to help small to midsize forest products firms with marketing efforts and to stimulate utilization of native wood species.

The directory, which identifies the various manufacturers of wood products operating in Maine, contains information on secondary rather than primary wood processing firms. In addition, the directory is intended to promote the concept of "value-added" products and to build a sense of collective purpose within the industry, according to Director Christopher W. Murdoch of the Office of Professional Development. He notes the directory should be useful in locating sources of various wood products and in procuring raw, finished and waste products.

Economic statistics on Maine forest products industries, percentages of companies with free machine time or that send work out, percentages of companies interested in exporting, distribution of sales by county, indexes of products, and raw material species and forms as well as data relating to the size and scope of the industries and their value to the state also are included in the publication.

The data was compiled from a survey conducted by the Maine Forest Service in cooperation with the Office of Professional Development and the Maine Science and Technology Commission under auspices of the Forest Products Innovation Center Grant Project. Copies of the publication may be ordered by calling the Office of Professional Development at 581-2857.

'HOBY' APPLICATIONS

The Maine State Hugh O'Brian Youth (HOBY) Leadership Foundation holds an annual seminar for high school sophomores in the spring each year. Applications are now available for the 1992 seminar. Every high school in the state is eligible to select one sophomore to attend the seminar.

HOBY Leadership Seminars bring together high school sophomores from around the state so they can interact with groups of distinguished leaders in business, government, education and industry to discuss present and future issues. The goal is to provide the youths with a forum for learning about the American incentive system and democratic process and for broadening their understanding of their leadership potential and quest for self development.

The HOBY Foundations was established by the popular actor Hugh O'Brian following a visit to Africa where he was inspired by a meeting with Dr. Albert Schweitzer.

All sophomores are eligible to apply to be their schools representative. Interested sophomores should contact their school principal for the application form. The forms need to be completed by Nov. 20, 1991.

From the Bethel Area

Chamber of Commerce

The Bethel Area Retailers will be meeting on Wednesday morning to put the finishing touches on the display case project. Twelve individual retail businesses will be participating in the displays, which is sure to bring them great exposure. Many thanks to Bob Keniston for building the beautiful display cases.

The retailers will also be discussing the Dec. 7 pre-holiday community celebration, "A Country Christmas in Bethel." Those planning the project have made every effort to include as many community organizations as want to be a part of it. The Bethel American Legion Post is discussing how we can include the Pearl Harbor remembrance in the ceremonies and we would like all those who are questioning our choice of dates to come forward with how their organization would like to be presented as well. The Holly Fair, two major church fairs and our community celebration should provide a truly peaceful and meaningful day as well as a lot of fun for children.

The Board of Directors will be meeting on Thursday, Nov. 14, for the regular monthly meeting.

We would also like to remind all members about our general membership management to be held on Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. at the Outward Bound School in Newry.

STEPHENS AUXILIARY BEGINS SELLING CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

Christmas tree lights for the ninth annual Holiday Christmas Tree fundraiser at Stephens Memorial Hospital will be on sale, beginning Nov. 1. The hospital auxiliary will be selling lights on this commemorative tree through Dec. 31.

Each year, the hospital auxiliary decorates the tree with lights which are purchased by members of the community, in memory of a relative or a loved one, or in honor of a special friend. Lights may be purchased for $5 each for an individual, couple or family.

During the holiday season, a special Annual Holiday Tree Poster will be on display in the lobby of Stephens Memorial Hospital, listing the names of the donors and those who are honored by each light on the tree.

This tradition of giving began nine years ago, when the auxiliary proposed the idea of using the fundraiser to assist Stephens Memorial in purchasing life-saving equipment for the hospital. This special project was a tremendous success from the very first year and has become a local symbol of the Christmas spirit, ushering in the holiday season in the Oxford Hills.

At 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 4, the community is invited to share the holiday spirit and join auxiliary members at Stephens Memorial, where the hospital auxiliary will be offering coffee, hot chocolate and Christmas cookies.

Lights for the Christmas tree may be purchased, from Nov. 1 to Dec. 31, in the hospital coffee shop, through any auxiliary members or by calling Mrs. H. O. Cornwall at 743-2568, Mrs.

Gordon Smith at 743-2408, Mrs. Stuart Cummings at 743-2602, Mrs. Evelyn Bean at 665-2979 or Mrs. Dana Douglass at 824-2229.

News from the Bethel Area

Health Center

The winter ski season is fast approaching and the Health Center is ready to accommodate the seasonal health needs of the community by expanding our weekend hours. Starting in late November or early December (depending on snow) we will offer nursing and provide coverage Saturdays from 8-5 and Sundays from 12-5 p.m. We will continue to have scheduled office visits Saturday mornings from 8-12 and then be open to treat walk-ins and emergencies until 5 p.m. Sundays will also be used for unscheduled visits.

A provider is on call at all the times the Health Center is closed. To reach a doctor or physician assistant please call the Health Center at 824-2193. You will speak to an answering service who will have a provider return your call.

The Health Center also provides physical therapy services two full days per week. The Health Center is licensed as a certified rehabilitation agency which allows for Medicare, Medicaid and insurance coverage.

The licensed physical therapists are skilled in assessment, evaluation and treatment, employ state-of-the-art techniques and will develop treatment plans for most any rehabilitation challenge.

The Physical Therapy department is in the new wing of the Health Center which allows access to our Nordic Track machine, exercise bike and Universal weight machine for rehab purposes. To make an appointment with a Physical Therapist a physician referral is necessary. Basically this means that your doctor needs to refer you for physical therapy services. Once this referral is made simply call the Health Center for an appointment. The Physical Therapy department is open all day on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Health Center's Exercise Physiologist Joel Hinshaw continues to orient new members to the exercise program on an individual or group basis. Monthly membership is still $15 per person and $20 per family and allows 30 hours per week of use of the exercise room. Joel is here all day on Tuesdays so call for more information or to set up an appointment at 824-2193.

Selectmen,
Town of Newry

KEEP US IN MIND
It's that time of year when your local Rotary Club must start gathering items for our annual auction. The proceeds of all of our efforts go to support such projects as the Senior Citizen Christmas Dinner, Christmas Food Baskets for the needy, student scholarships, support of the local health facilities, summer camp tuition, area athletes expenses, disabled individuals needs, etc. If you're cleaning the garage, attic, or cellar, let us get rid of those unwanted items for you. Call Roger Conant, 824-2131 or 824-2269, for pickup. Help us with your support of our projects. It's a good feeling!

Be prepared for that first snowstorm

The first significant snowstorm of the year can be troublesome to highway maintenance crews as well as to other motorists, according to a Maine Department of Transportation official.

"The changes in driving conditions affect our drivers just as much as they do the average motorist," explains John E. Dority, director of MDOT's Bureau of Maintenance and Operations.

"In addition to adapting to the need for greater stopping and breaking distances, our drivers must also sharpen the multitude of skills needed to operate plowing and sanding equipment in less than ideal traffic and weather conditions," Dority said.

"And, just as we take steps to prepare our equipment for the first winter storm, there are things the average motorist should do to prepare his or her vehicle," he said. "If they don't have to worry about vehicle condition, drivers can concentrate more fully on the other factors present in a storm situation."

"Probably the most serious mistake a driver can make is to wait until the first snowfall to check the condition of a vehicle's tires. That delay results in many drivers being forced to face the first storm with worn tires still on their vehicles. Adapting to storm conditions can be difficult enough without complicating things by not having good tread on your vehicles. Snow tires or multi-seasonal tread tires in good condition are an essential ingredient for winter driving," Dority said.

"Now is the time when people should check their car's tires, heater, defroster and windshield wipers as part of preparing the vehicle for winter driving," he said. "And when the first storm does arrive, remember that changes in road and weather conditions require changes in everyone's driving habits, including those of our snowplow drivers. They will be exercising additional caution during the first storm and we hope other drivers will do likewise," Dority said. "As with any new situation, the better prepared we are ahead of time, the better we can adjust to the situation," he concluded.
